Q & A

With David Belbin

Author of Bone & Cane

Thursday 28 July 2011 7pm

DAVID Belbin is a local author whose book Bone & Cane has barely been out of the top 10 ebook downloads list on Amazon since it was published earlier this year.

Nottingham, 1997. Labour politician Sarah Bone decides that the best way to keep her seat in the upcoming elections is to take on the case of Ed Clarke, a wrongfully imprisoned 'murderer'. It's only on the night that he's released Sarah discovers that she may have made a terrible mistake.

Meanwhile Sarah's first love, Nick Cane has just been realised from prison after doing time for growing cannabis. Nick knows Ed Clarke's a dangerous man as they were in the same prison. Nick soon realises that Ed is far from a 'reformed character' when they both start working illegally for the same cab firm.

When Nick meets Sarah again the old flame of attraction sparks once more, but can Sarah afford to let the past back into her life? And will they be able to expose Ed Clark's guilt?

Have you ever read a book and thought ‘I can do that’?

Before you do anything
read THIS book!

If you've already written your book you REALLY need to read this one before you send it anywhere near an agent or publisher.

Writing, especially good writing is hard work.
There are many mistakes first time authors can make.

Fortunately for you Nicola Morgan, who has published over 90 books, has written this no nonsense guide to getting published.

It's engaging and full of common sense,
plus it has an amazing resource and further reading guide.
